Features of the iPhone 13

The current price of the iPhone 13 is 61,999, which is about 11,000, costlier than the current price of the iPhone 12, which is 50,999. One might choose the former in comparison to the latter despite the price difference because of the various improvements Apple made to its 2021 flagship model compared to its 2020 variant. The base variant of the iPhone 13 has 128 GB of internal memory, while the 12 started with a 64 GB variant. iPhone 13 was also slightly heavier by a weight of 174g compared to its previous variants, 164g. The chipset of the iPhone 13 is the A15 Bionic, a significant improvement on the iPhone 12 A14 Bionic. We all know how the Bionic chipset lineup is always considered top-of-the-line whenever Apple releases a new one, and each variant is a step up in consideration to the previous variant released. The camera of the iPhone 13 is a noticeable step up from the iPhone 12, capable of producing Dolby Vision HDR at 60fps. iPhone 13 also comes back with a wireless charging capable 3240 mAh Li-Ion battery, much to the delight of the fans of the Apple eco-system. These various upgrades to the iPhone 13 make it an exceptionally sought-after product for most users.
